

David Silver

David has a degree in sport science from Kingston University and on graduation obtained a place at London's highly regarded St. George's Hospital medical School to study physiotherapy. David embarked on a career in private physiotherapy which also included the London Broncos RLFC.

David specialises in functional movement screening and prides himself on finding and treating the causes and not just consequences of impairment and pain. As such, he continues to successfully treat a wide range of conditions.

David is currently undertaking a Masters degree in sport and exercise rehabilitation at St. Mary's University.<sup>23</sup>
